New York Refiners Agitated Over the Hawaiian Treaty.

The Revenue Cutter Thos. Corwin ordered to the Assistance of the Crew of the Rodgers.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN

New York, April [illegible]—[illegible] great interest [illegible] city are [illegible] following [illegible] the latest [illegible] arriv[illegible] this port brought a small [illegible] Hawaiian sugar [illegible] [illegible] material [illegible] admitting this [illegible] free [illegible] Francis[illegible] nevertheless awakens very lively interest [illegible] sugar [illegible] cause of [illegible] its gradual [illegible] expected to be illustrative of the character [illegible] greater quantity now afloat [illegible] from the Sandwich Islands [illegible] It is regarded as the first showing of a cloud which if the present reciprocal treaty with the Islands is maintained must quickly overshadow and have a most pernicious influence upon all other sugar interests in this country than those of the Claus Spreckels of California speculators known as the Claus Spreckels combination. The Sun then gives the history of the treaty and narrative of how it has been operated [illegible] with interviews with several New York sugar refineries. The first of the latter is [illegible] Spreckles has driven the eastern r[illegible] out of Denver and many other places on this side of the rocky mountains with his duty free so called Sandwich Island sugar. He has made enormous profits by several advantages he enjoys in his monopoly for he has not cheapened his products any more than a mere fraction of a cent below New York prices and freight, which was necessary to hold the market. When granulated was worth ten cents in New York which would have made it 12 cents in San Francisco with freight added, he sold at 12 cents nominally, but actually with an allowance off of one quarter of a cent on condition of buyers agreement to use no eastern sugars. This was done to keep a shade under the possibility of eastern competition and in doing that his advantages were still 4-15 cents per pound; even supposing that he only used in refining low grade sugars the duty on which would average 1 50 cents per pound. As he extends his business eastwardly he makes such reductions as underbid eastern medium regardless of discriminating against his buyers. In October last, for instance, when he was selling granulated sugar in San Francisco to local buyers at 11¾ he sold the same grade to Denver buyers at 9 cents without freight, thus making 2¾ cents per pound difference against home buyers and a Denver man buying at that could lay sugar down in his own store at just ¼ of a cent per pound less than eastern buyers could deliver it to him, but I don't suppose there's a man in the street who wouldn't do the same thing if he had a chance. People don't care about Spreckles. The fault is with the treaty and that must be abrogated or it will play the deuce with us.

Mrs. Jesse James Interviewed.

Chicago, April 21.—A special to the Times from Kansas City gives an extended interview with Jesse James' widow. She tells of their courtship, which lasted five years. It was opposed by her parents who lived near Kansas City, but they contrived to elope. This was in 1869 just after Jesse, who was her cousin, had been declared an outlaw with a price on his head. He visited her there and she him at his mother's in Kearney. Once they hid in the yard when the Pinkertons were after them. They were married at her sister's in Kearney on April 24 1874 and went to Sherman, Texas, making their honeymoon on the proceeds of the Blue Cut robbery. She says Jesse was not in the Hot Springs robbery, and Gadshill netted him only $200. Reports about the proceeds of his robberies are greatly exaggerated. They went from Sherman to Dallas in September. Mrs. James returned to Kansas City that winter while Jesse took part in the Corinth, Mississippi and Muncie, Kansas, affairs. They went to Edgefield, Tennessee, and then to Baltimore. Jesse, she says, was not in the Huntington, West Virginia, robbery. They went back to Nashville, and while there the Baxter Springs, Kansas and Otterville, Missouri, robberies were perpetrated. She says Jesse was not in them. He was dealing in fast horses and lived there until March. During that time Jesse was a delegate to the state convention which nominated Governor Foster. He was in the first Glendale and Burlington raids and in March went to Kansas City and lived there till September 1st. The Blue Cut robbery was planned here, and the outlaws lived in the house afterwards. They moved several times in Kansas City, and finally to St. Joseph where he was killed. She says he did not take part in the Kansas City exposition robbery nor stage robberies in Colorado or Texas.

Cause of the Brokers' Raid.

New York, April 20.—The raid by a clique of brokers on the South Pacific yesterday is believed to be in furtherance of a scheme already exposed to get control of the entire stock at its present low price, and then get up another deal in the summer market. Dealers in bonds say investors are unfavorably acted upon by the lack of statistical information in regard to the railroad property, and there are intimations of an organized movement to endeavor to compel railroad companies to make monthly statements of earnings, expenses, etc. European and American capitalists are said to be combined in the movement, too. It is said that some brokers are heading government 4s for 12 [illegible]

Pennsylvania Railroad Charges.

G. W. Adams, passenger agent of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road, received this evening a dispatch from the general manager of the Pennsylvania company at Philadelphia, stating that so far as the Pennsylvania company was concerned, there will be no withdrawal of the limited trains either east or west bound. The other change to be made, and the one which started the rumor of a withdrawal, is that the western express, which leaves New York at 4 P. M., instead of reaching Chicago at 10 the next night, will arrive at 7 the second morning. The limited trains are an assured success, and will continue to run on schedule time. Large sums of money have been spent recently in adding to those trains new and superior cars and making their equipment perfect.

Miln, secretary of the local Free Religious Association to-day forwarded to Felix Adler, of New York, president of the national association, an invitation to call a convention to be held here May 10th and 11th. Mr. Miln went to New York to-night to carry the invitation.

A Pre-arranged Plan.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 20.—Irwin, one of the band of thieves brought before the grand jury, stated that Enos Crowther, former register of the city, had a duplicate key to the city safe mass, and accompanied by Cox and Scott stole the bonds and arranged, after disposing of the first lot, to steal $200,000 more.

Bond Thieves Arraigned.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 20.—To-day the grand jury presented indictments against Geo. M. Irwin, A. W. Scott, Asa J. Crowther and John Cox for the theft of $100,000 of funding bonds from the city register's office. The prisoners were brought into court, waived formal arraignment, pleaded not guilty and their bonds fixed at $5000 each. Crowther gave bonds, and the others went to jail. The cases will go over to the next criminal term of court in June. The grand jury made a lengthy report, and criticised the various county officers for non compliance with the strict letter of the law and recommended the removal of Walter Young financial agent.

Sanitary Measures Needed.

Cairo, Ill., April 21.—A committee of the sanitary council of the Mississippi river report to the council that the national board of health should continue to co-operate with the Louisiana authorities by stationing an officer at each of their port and other Mississippi quarantine stations and reestablish inspecting service on the river during the summer to prevent the introduction of yellow fever and other contagious diseases. The council passed a resolution asking congress to make an appropriation for the work.

A Fearful Tragedy.

Boston, April 20.—The West on Commercial to day says Mrs. Russell aged 70, was killed to-day by her son-in-law Mr. Edwin Prescott aged 66. Officers being notified found the body in a back shed the skull fractured and throat cut from ear to ear. The murderer was arrested and taken to jail. The tragedy created intense excitement as the parties moved in the highest society circles. Prescott was for many years a dry goods merchant in Arlington and afterwards in Cambridge and amassed a fortune. Through financial reverses his mind has been somewhat deranged.

THE SHIPHERD INVESTIGATION.

Testimony of [illegible] Hurlbut, of the N. Y. World, before the Committee.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

Washington, April [illegible].—W[illegible] [illegible] year [illegible] the [illegible] committee [illegible] He declared the [illegible] steve[illegible] telegram [illegible] sentation of facts. Shipherd [illegible] with [illegible] rative [illegible] bitterly [illegible] [illegible] him [illegible] [illegible] matter [illegible] [illegible] marginal [illegible] [illegible] at the [illegible] of my interview with Shipherd [illegible] Blaine had taken this method [illegible] views and that the marginal note might have been sent to supplement [illegible] the instructions [illegible] in the body of the dispatch [illegible] man minister relating [illegible] incident [illegible]

Witness' relations with Blaine were [illegible]. The secretary failed to convince witness he was [illegible] ing, but the [illegible] of Garfield [illegible] He never [illegible] faith in his methods [illegible] Blaine. Witness never heard Blaine disapprove [illegible] course of witness' brother although he had several talks with him about the time the dispatch was sent expressing disapproval. He read the following letter from his brother December 9 1881:

"The Chilian papers are full of that infernal Shipherd and his friends. They have been kicked out of this legation and out of the state department but he is an indefatigable nuisance. I hope Sam Randall will call for the papers in the department in reference to him and his affairs. I have sent all his letters back to the department and I am anxious desire that the correspondence be made public. I have fears (I hope not well grounded) that our government means to slide out of the American position here. My personal talk with Blaine and Garfield of course will not appear in any official correspondence but it was the move for my action. I think they will throw him overboard unless congress backs up the American line I have taken here. Personally I care but little about it but I must say in Blaine's letter of the 22d of November to me there was a manifest disposition to [illegible] dge."

Witness was asked if he could state what his brother's understanding of the instructions were and replied he understood he was to have elastic powers to carry out the policy begun by Evarts to bring about a peace between Chili and Peru to induce South American republics to cease war and to prevent spoliation of Peruvian territory being made a condition necessary to a settlement of difficulties between Chili and Peru. In response to a question witness said "I do not understand that Blaine showed a dispatch with a marginal note on it to Peruvian minister but simply related to him the incident referred to to indicate that in that way only could he do what he wished to." Witness had heard that Corbin brother-in-law of Grant once owned part of the Landreau claim.

Stephen told witness he had several letters from Shipherd and one was a brazen attempt at bribery, and he proposed to show them to the president who had asked him to look into Shipherd's pretensions. Witness advised him to first get at the bottom of the matter. Witness thought if Stephen had not taken his advice Blaine would have gotten rid of Shipherd long before he did. Witness understood Blaine approved the plans of the Credit Industrial in their efforts to obviate spoliation of Peru. Gen. Grant approved that view in a letter which Blaine saw was addressed to Elmore the Peruvian minister whom Grant knew in Peking. He produced this letter which was read.

He said in conversation with the secretary he complained to him (the secretary) that that department of the government had not taken just such a course as to warrant Peru or sent instructions to Hurlbut as he (the Peruvian minister) had expected and the impression I gathered was that Blaine had told the Peruvian minister this incident to imply that he had indicated on the margin of this dispatch his real views which the circumstances did not admit of his doing in a constitutional manner. It was simply an incident in my mind suggested by conversation with the Peruvian minister and I did not think of it again until the conversation with Shipherd when his relation of the same story gave me the impression that the marginal might have been made upon the dispatch to my brother.

The chairman announced that Blaine would testify Monday and the committee adjourned till then.

GEN. HURLBUT'S DEATH.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

Panama, April 20.—The last steamer from the south coast brings particulars of the death of Gen. Stephen A. Hurlbut, U. S. minister resident to Peru. Up to the morning of his death he had been enjoying the best of health, awoke and dressed as usual early on the [illegible] played for some little time with his two grand children, and whilst washing his face was suddenly seized with such pain in the region of his heart as compelled him to give vent to agonizing cries for some minutes. He remained in strong agony and totally deprived of all power of articulation and was placed upon the bed where he only partly recovered consciousness. His first exclamation was "God bless you all I am dying. Oh my heart." A few more disjointed phrases were uttered in a less distinct tone, and in less than twenty minutes from the first attack he ceased to exist. Directly the calamity became known the legation was thronged by multitudes of all nationalities, whose subdued voices and spontaneous condolences proved how terribly and widespread the blow had made itself felt. Gen. Lynch offered in the name of the government of Chili to take charge of the remains and give them a public funeral, conducted with the ceremony and honor due to the high official position and military rank of deceased. This offer was declined by Mrs. Hurlbut, who was averse to military display, and expressed the wish that appropriate services be held at the legation and the body have temporary lodgment in Meiggs' vault at Villegas, which was kindly placed at her disposal by Henry Meiggs pending transfer of the remains to the United States. Some important Peruvian gentlemen requested and obtained permission to drape the residence in mourning and constructed in one of the largest salons a mortuary chapel in which the body lay and was viewed by a great number of visitors. The remains were surrounded by ornate funeral decorations and a wealth of floral adornments.

Owing to the suddenness of his death and extravagant rumors that deceased had been poisoned it was thought best to hold a postmortem. The result plainly indicated death from aneurism of the heart, but in deference to the opinion of some of the examining physicians portions of the stomach were taken for chemical analysis. Gen. Moore consul at Callao at once took charge of the legation. Outward signs of mourning were visible everywhere during the funeral ceremonies and the stores of this city and Callao were closed. The hearse was drawn by volunteer Americans and was surmounted by floral tributes and surrounded by men of all ranks including Admiral Lynch, Chilian commander, Trescott, U. S. envoy to the Chilian republic and other prominent people. The cortege included also a thousand followers in deep mourning and students of San Carlos university. On the 6th of next month the casket will be conveyed on board the steamer for the United States.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

ARIZONA.

The Southern Outbreaks.

Tucson, April 21.—Runners from Eagle Creek say McMaster and six Mexicans are killed. There was a large force of Indians remaining on Eagle Creek and fears are entertained for the safety of Tom New land and wife McMuren and son Lamb and son and some other parties. A party from Safford says at Eagle Creek this morning, there were three prospectors killed on the Apache road. The bodies were warm when the troops came up with them. Indians destroyed freight, shot some horses and carried others off with them. They also tried to set fire to the wagons. A late courier says there were ten Mexicans killed at Eagle creek, including McMasters, wife and children. He also states that one of his Indian herders who was taken prisoner by Natze and Juh escaped and says Newland McMuren and party are all killed.

A special from San Carlos says the Chiricahuas made a raid in here after Loco's band and scooped everything before them killing twenty people as far as heard from. There are not sufficient troops to protect the place.

Congressional Notes.

The house committee on pension claims [illegible] quartermaster general's office [illegible] and testimony to day [illegible] to show there was a species of blackmail [illegible] claimants but this was generally discredited by the committee. The whole subject [illegible] will be overhauled.

The republican caucus Friday decided to take every possible [illegible] of preventing conduct in the house as the [illegible] of various measures [illegible] the [illegible] to appoint a committee of seven to arrange the order of bills.

Upon the speaker's [illegible] the house are [illegible] bills which have been considered by committees and recommended for passage.

[illegible] civil service reform [illegible] several bills to enlarge the scope of the agricultural department virtually agreed upon a substitute which provides for a department [illegible] industries and four bureaus [illegible] which is to be designated as a bureau of agriculture. The bill provides for a secretary who shall be a cabinet officer and four heads of bureaus.

The house [illegible] on territories to day [illegible] reported favorably a bill for the organization of the judicial district of Alaska and the establishment there of a civil government. The bill provides for a judge and three associate justices and for a U. S. marshal who shall also act as an officer of the government. It also provides for extension over the territory of Alaska the land and timber mining laws of Oregon, Nevada, Colorado and Washington territory.

Page [illegible] presented the petition of citizens of California asking the passage of the bill incorporating the maritime canal company of Nicaragua. Referred.

The senate bill passed with amendments making sale of the past reservation of Omaha Indians in Nebraska.

The Mississippi improvement bill was [illegible] [illegible] in the senate yesterday while McDill spoke on the regulation of inter state commerce.

The senate appropriation committee this morning agreed to report to the house a resolution appropriating $[illegible] for deficiency in the office of public printer.

The democrats are likely to stubbornly contest the unseating of Chalmers.

Some republicans criticise this [illegible] negligence of the house in letting contest election cases go over. At least yielding gives the democrats the advantage.

The house bill passed fixing the second Tuesday of October as the time for election of congressmen in West Virginia.

The Mexican Boundary Line.

The president has transmitted to congress a letter addressed by the [illegible] plenipotentiary of Mexico to the secretary of state proposing [illegible] of the convention between the countries for defining the boundary between the United States and Mexico from Rio Grande to the Pacific ocean by erection of [illegible] monuments. He also lays before congress a letter on the same subject with [illegible] the secretary of war [illegible] the proposition was referred by the secretary of state for expression of his views thereon. The president states he [illegible] that the boundary line between the two countries as defined by existing treaties and already once surveyed [illegible] be run on a and [illegible] by suitable permanent monuments and says that by so doing unceasingly will be prevented as to jurisdiction in criminal and municipal affairs and many questions be averted which may at any time in the near future arise with the growth of population on the border. Moreover I believe the willing and speedy assent of the government of the United States to the proposal thus to determine the existing stipulated boundary with permanence and precision will be in some sense an assurance to Mexico that the unauthorized suspicion which of late years seems to have [illegible] some credence in that republic that the United States covets and seeks to annex neighboring territory is without foundation. That which the United States seeks and which a definite settlement of boundary in the proposed manner will promote is a confiding and friendly feeling between the two nations, leading to advantageous commerce and closer commercial relations. I have to suggest that in accepting this proposal suitable provision be made for an adequate military force on the frontier to protect surveying parties from hostile Indians. The troops so employed will at the same time protect settlers on the border and help prevent marauding on both sides by nomadic Indians.

The Chinese Bill Doctored by the Senate.

New York, April 21.—A Washington correspondent says the senate foreign affairs committee has stricken out of the Chinese bill which passed the house Monday, the section which forbids naturalization of Chinamen and the section which forbids immigration of skilled Chinese laborers. Pacific coast senators say they will make a strong effort to reinstate those sections and the actions of the republican caucus this morning indicate they will support the bill as it passed the house. Pacific coast men are very indignant that eastern merchants are signing petitions against the Chinese bill and threaten to boycott all eastern merchants who sign such petitions. In the senate to-day Miller and Farley gave notice of their purpose to press consideration of the Chinese bill on Monday if pending business is then disposed of otherwise on Tuesday. The Chinese bill was also the subject of some remarks during the republican caucus meeting to-day. Several eastern senators desiring to obtain caucus declaration in support of the senate committee's amendments to the house bill. Interchange of views on this topic had however made very little progress when the caucus adjourned and consequently no action was taken in regard to it.

That Everlasting Divorce Case Again.

Additional testimony was taken to day in behalf of Senator Christiancy in the pending divorce suit. Mrs. Christiancy denied that she ever corresponded with any one under the name of Mrs. K. K. Wharton and she had never received letters so addressed, but in this evidence three clerks from the post office testified that Mrs. Christiancy had enquired for letters addressed to Mrs. K. K. Wharton and such letters had been delivered to her. The testimony was also taken of her mother whose statements corroborated those of Mrs. Christiancy in the impeachment of the veracity of the [illegible] Andrew Follett, who testified he had received money from Mr. Christiancy for medical services rendered the latter's wife.

The Star Route Monotony.

Judge Wylie overruled the motion of defendants in the star route cases to compel prosecution to furnish a full bill of particulars as to the overt acts charged in indictments. Wilson for the defense noted exceptions to the decision. He asked that the plea of not guilty entered by court in Turner's case be withdrawn and he be allowed to quash. The request court said, would be held under consideration until Monday.

New Nominations.

The president has nominated Alphonso Taft of Ohio envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Austria. Wm. L. Dayton of New Jersey minister resident of the United States to the Netherlands. N. Fish of New York minister resident of Belgium. John M. Francis charge d'affaires to Portugal. J. P. SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN

New York, April [illegible]—The Herald [illegible] April 19. The following has been [illegible] from [illegible] at Yakutsk [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] assist [illegible] [illegible] But [illegible] news [illegible]

The following important dispatch from Mr. Jackson [illegible] this place [illegible] day.

[illegible] Irkutsk (on Lena river) April [illegible] I arrived at this place [illegible] Irkutsk (8 miles) from Yakutsk shortly after [illegible] Mr. [illegible] Verana [illegible] W. H. Gilder [illegible] having [illegible] the following [illegible] dispatch

JACKSON.

I arrived here yesterday and leave to-night for British [illegible] meet Melville. I will reach Yakutsk towards the end of April. Melville with the Ispravnik [illegible] this district start to-night [illegible] search [illegible]

W. H. GILDER.

Jackson's dispatch continues: As unfortunately I can't see the dispatches of Gilder which he has sent under seal to Gov. Tchernaieff, I give you the information received from Ispravnick of Sredni Kolymsk and have asked Gov. Tchernaieff to send dispatch by an express courier to Irkutsk. Ispravnik of Kolymsk 31 days ago with Gilder who [illegible] among Churkches [illegible] Kolymsk in the latter part of February. The journey to that point in midwinter [illegible] a terrible [illegible] Ispravnik says that Gilder brings information that the steamer Rodgers was burned in the first of January this year and that Lieut. Berry and crew are at Tiapkan where they get food enough from Chuckchees. Ispravnik [illegible] Mr. Devarawa, of Kolymsk had sent tobacco and tea to them for bartering purposes and they needed nothing else. Three months provisions were saved from the ship. Tiapkan is near Serdze Kamen. Further details say that endeavors to save the ship were made in vain. She lay within a short distance of shore but the [illegible] could not bear the weight of [illegible] at [illegible] from the ship to the shore was fixed with much difficulty. By this line the boats and crew were all safely landed. The entire ship's company are in good health and spirits and [illegible] danger [illegible] their starving. Governor Tchernaieff has given orders to Tchuktche chiefs to [illegible] all in their power to assist the shipwrecked crew. The latest news from Verhoyansk is that they are anxious there [illegible] Ispravnick who went with Melville and who they think ought to have returned in February (old style). He has not yet returned. Terrible hurricanes with snow have prevailed [illegible] Verhoyansk district and they are afraid Ispravnick has perished and eventually the whole party will. As Ispravnick had orders to accompany Melville until such time as the latter might choose to send him back I believe there is no reason for anxiety.

TORNADOES AND CYCLONES.

Particulars of the Brownsville Cyclone.

St. Louis, April [illegible]—A Republican's correspondent writing from Brownsville gives particulars of the terrible cyclone. He says the wildest confusion reigned all day. The town was crowded with people from the surrounding country who flocked in to see the devastation. The work of clearing away the debris was commenced after the storm passed and has been kept up incessantly ever since but it will require several days to thoroughly overhaul the ruins. Four dead bodies have been exhumed and it is thought there are still a woman and child buried in the ruins. E. G. Biggerstaff was in the street when the two storm clouds united and made their terrible rush for town. He stood directly in line of the funnel shaped cloud and thinking to get out of its way started to run but had proceeded not more than a dozen yards when he was enveloped, drawn up several feet above ground and hurled against a brick building but escaped without even a bruise. He says that while he was up in the air and within the vortex of the cloud he heard a terrible crackling sound and could see myriads of sparks flying round evidently electrical. The storm did not last more than a minute and when it passed all parts of the town touched were a perfect waste. The first place the storm struck was a two-story brick building, corner of Main and Spring streets occupied by Myers & Dunning dry goods; Thomas Andrews clothing; A. Helsen, groceries, and J. A. Reinhe hardware which was lifted from its foundations and hurled into the street burying the inmates and killing three outright. The storm then continued northeast demolishing a number of dwellings on the way to the brick block on Lexington avenue. Seven two-story brick buildings were destroyed and others were badly damaged. The Brownsville hotel a large two-story frame was completely carried away, and timbers scattered 100 yards around. The brick public school building was cut down to the first windows. School had been dismissed about fifteen minutes before the storm. The Christian church was also destroyed and about twenty frame and several brick dwellings were demolished. The aggregate loss is at least $150,000. The force of the wind was so great that it lifted a brick building clear off the foundations and frame buildings were picked up bodily and twisted into splinters. Carpets and furniture in dwellings were carried entirely out of town and lodged in tree tops and lumber yards scattered all over the country. Several pieces were found a mile distant. A house was carried about fifty feet and [illegible] against a brick wall and two miles in the country a fence rail was driven entirely through the body of a cow. Homeopathy physicians have been relieved by others from Sedalia and adjacent towns and the wounded have now been nearly all attended to. A large number were rendered homeless. The cyclone is fairly equal to that of Richmond in 1878, or Marshfield in 1873. A portion of the dead were buried to day.

A special train was run from Sedalia to day and the proceeds of the trip about $400 donated the sufferers. Another train will be run to-morrow for the same purpose. The mayor has issued a proclamation stating donations will be received by a committee for distribution. No new facts are developed.

At Montrose eighteen dwellings and four churches were destroyed and a number of farm houses in the vicinity are demolished.

Carrollton, La., has a Cyclone.

Chicago, April 21.—A special says the town of Carrollton, La., was struck by a whirlwind Tuesday evening. A skiff in the river containing three men was capsized and none of the occupants seen since. The wharf was [illegible] and carried a square distant. The [illegible] the wind was the deep[illegible] [illegible] Several houses were [illegible] greatly damaged. The German Catholic school was completely destroyed and a number of persons severely hurt, but none killed outright. The damage is estimated at $35,000. Other neighboring towns report more or less damage.

THE REPUBLICAN RALLY.

[illegible] I saw a [illegible] bill which [illegible] [illegible] I am always ready to ratify and am always [illegible] stand on the platform. I am truly grateful for the [illegible] I always receive from a Portland audience.

Again we are about to enter upon a political [illegible] the result of which is to determine what [illegible] political party is to be entrusted with the administration of the affairs of the state for the next four years and whether the state shall be represented in the house of representatives of the United States for the next two years and in the United States senate for the next six years by a republican or a democrat.

The convention has concluded its labors and placed in the field nominations for state officers and for members of congress.

By the renomination of Hon. M. C. George for congress the convention but voiced the will of the entire party of the state and justly recognized his intelligent, energetic and impartial labors in congress. Its action in this respect will be hailed with approbation throughout the state and overwhelmingly ratified at the polls. [Applause.]

The nomination of Hon. Z. F. Moody for governor is also fortunate. He possesses the first qualification demanded by the people in a candidate for governor—honesty. It is entirely unnecessary for him to announce that to him in the performance of his official duties shall have a use to impugn the honesty of his motives. His ability to fill the important office to which he has been nominated is also undoubted. In the prime of life in the full possession of all his physical and mental powers he will bring his personal attention to bear upon the important affairs of the state and give us an economical honest and competent administration. In voting for him the people will have no fears that the important duties of his office will have to be performed by proxy and there is no great probability that if he is elected as he surely will be, before the end of his term the duties of governor will devolve upon another.

I am not disposed to unduly question the fitness of the honorable gentleman who has been nominated by the democratic convention for governor. It [illegible] under protest against his own convictions, and I know against the convictions of a considerable portion of his party. His feeble gait as he walked upon the platform after his nomination the weakness of his voice as with apparent physical effort he addressed the convention, and his statement that on account of ill health he had for years retired from active politics and business demonstrated to all who heard him, I think that if elected he must be only nominally governor and upon others must devolve to a great extent the duties of the office. The reason of his nomination is apparent. It was not on account of his peculiar fitness for the office. For many years the prestige of his election to congress which it is now claimed renders him an available candidate for governor has been overlooked and ignored by his party. He was selected as no available candidate for the Grover wing of the party and no annoyed [illegible] the Grover interest—a sugar coated pill for the anti Grover faction of the party to swallow.

His election will be the triumph of that faction of the democratic party which for eight years plundered the revenues of the state and prostituted the state administration to their own political and private interests and as the crowning act of its unfaithfulness and utter contempt for law, justice and decency attempted to steal from the people of the state and [illegible] the United States the fruits of the republican victory in this state in the presidential election. His election would be a rebuke to [illegible] of the democratic party who have become [illegible] of the Grover administration [illegible] to redeem their party from itself.

The majority of the democratic convention may have [illegible] their nominations [illegible] governor to [illegible] party [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] to see [illegible] the party [illegible] all [illegible] administration [illegible] every department, until there was not anything to steal and burdened [illegible] with a debt of over $30,000.

Have they forgotten the swamp land steal the [illegible] and law and the democratic board [illegible] equalization [illegible] the purposes of making places for their own political friends and the support of the democratic press [illegible] newspapers?

Have they forgotten how the school and other funds of the state were squandered, paid to favorites as salaries for nominal services and loaned to friends upon inadequate security? How the public monies were paid [illegible] clerical assistance and salaries without authority of law and illegal claims of sheriffs and passengers for the transportation of prisoners and insane [illegible] paid to make political capital. Have they forgotten the special tax which they have paid for several years past to liquidate the debt left as a legacy by the Grover administration? In short have they forgotten the utter rottenness of the Grover administration now acknowledged by a respectable portion of the party? I believe not.

These things are no longer matters of controversy. They are matters of public notoriety. They appear from records of the state from official reports, from the judgments of the courts. And I am satisfied there are many honest democrats in the state who will refuse to give their votes to restore to power any portion of the ring which profited by the irregularities of the Grover administration.

For is it true as is claimed that the election of Mr. Smith to congress was a just criterion of his popularity. The result of that election was determined by other causes. Mr. Logan by the votes in the convention of Southern and Eastern Oregon, and against the earnest protest and active efforts of many of the leading republicans of the valley counties, had been nominated for congress by a bare majority. He was a man of marked ability but hardly in sympathy with the advanced ideas of his party, and not in personal sympathy with many of the leading men in the party. Under the circumstances the result could hardly have been otherwise than it proved.

There were other more powerful causes, however that contributed to the result. Those of you who were in Portland on the day of election, will remember the scenes at the polls. I will not describe them here. The result of the efforts of democratic organization in the city was that when the polls closed which in North Portland precinct was not until 9 or 10 o'clock at night in this judicial district then [illegible] prosecuting attorney were elected by a bare majority. We will take care to see that the scenes of 1878 are not re-enacted in Portland on the day of election and Mr. Smith and his supporters will find that the causes which contributed to his election then do not now exist. [Applause.]

The nominations for secretary of state and state treasurer are [illegible] Having honestly discharged the duties of their respective offices for four years and in connection with an honest governor given a clean and honest administration of state affairs they deserved renomination and will be elected.

The fact that Mr. Lord has been nominated by acclamation for judge of the supreme court is ample proof that he has not disappointed the expectations of the people. If fine legal acumen, if good legal attainments if uniform courtesy to the bar, if patient hearing and painstaking investigation of causes and lucid and sound decisions qualify a man for the supreme bench Judge Lord has shown himself eminently qualified for that position. [Applause.]

Mr. Fenton, in his brief speech accepting the nomination for congress announced the convention that the party had abandoned the dead issues of the past and adopted a platform of live issues. Although the people have long since learned that the chief aim of a party platform is to catch votes it must be confessed that the democratic platform is something of a surprise. What has become of the time honored principles of the grand old democratic party.

It declared through its national convention in 1860 that slavery was protected in the territories by the constitution of the United States. It asserted in 1861 that the United States was a mere [illegible] to be dissolved at the will of either party to it. It asserted through President Buchanan that there was no power in the federal government to [illegible] rebellion. It declared in 1864 that the war to save the union was a failure. It [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] constitutional. It [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Christianity will [illegible] such unbelief [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] popular ideas [illegible] down [illegible] [illegible] He gave a sketch of the establishment of the Mormon church in Utah and coming down to the statement [illegible] the last election asserted that the governor of Utah having expressed views which he thought would [illegible] had entered into a conspiracy with others to [illegible] the question as to whether the people of Utah should be represented in congress. If he had his rights he should have come here with a certificate from the highest authority in Utah [illegible] by the governor. He had been kept out [illegible] at bound hand and foot until the [illegible] congress had been passed and it was now proposed to make it operative as to him and expel him not by a two thirds vote but by a majority vote. He did not envy the feelings of any of those who would do such injustice because of the popular clamor against Utah. He asked the gentleman who said the people of Utah violate law whether they would set the example of smiting down law and justice because of the bad character of the people. He would want his hand to lose its cunning and his tongue to cleave to the roof of his mouth before he would in that manner tear out the corner stone of liberty and right of the people to representation. He denied he was sent to represent any church or sect but was the representative of Utah. He believed God had given a command the object of which was to redeem the human family, to make marriage honorable and uplift it to its present condition cut off the opportunity for prostitution and concubinage and leave no margin for lust to prey upon.

Calkins of Indiana closed the debate with an exhaustive argument in support of the right and power of the house to prescribe qualifications for territorial delegates. Branching off to the discussion of the eradication of polygamy he declared that plural wives must be forsaken and polygamy must yield—not to the republican party nor to the democratic party but to the universal voice of the civilized world. [Applause.]

Under call of committees 58 reports were presented. The naval committee reported favorably a bill for the sale of the Charlestown navy yard. The land will now bring six millions, and the treasury be saved annually $150,000 now expended to keep the yard in repair besides $420,000 per year interest upon the value of property. This sum is sufficient to purchase a steel ship of war every four years and in addition, Boston will gain by the sale of $7,000,000 worth of taxable property.

The committee on agriculture made an adverse report upon the bill to authorize the commissioner of agriculture to distribute seeds to destitute farmers and planters of flooded sections.

King of Louisiana introduced a bill appropriating $6,000,000 for the improvement and construction of Mississippi levees. Referred. Adjourned.

Tony Pastor owns and runs a first class theater on Broadway New York City and has gathered about him the best troupe of variety artists that could be obtained anywhere. The company has just completed a brilliant engagement at the Walnut Street theater, Philadelphia, and at [illegible] the present tour they will reappear in Tony Pastor's own theater in New York City. Mr. Pastor is the originator of his [illegible] [illegible] and has made himself immensely popular. [illegible] realized by this [illegible] large fortune.

The writer of this article met Mr. Pastor recently at the Bingham house in Philadelphia and [illegible] him [illegible] private as he [illegible] During our conversation I inquired as to his physical health and he replied that notwithstanding the strain upon him in the discharge of his professional duties it was excellent. He had occasionally severe pains, the result of rheumatic attacks of olden times but as the [illegible] had never troubled him long as he had found out a remedy for all such annoying affections. I asked him what the remedy was and he replied St. Jacobs Oil. I then learned from Mr. Pastor that he considered the Great German Remedy an excellent preparation for the cure or relief of rheumatism and that it was about the only thing used among professional people for that distressing complaint. He took bottles of it with him whenever he went traveling, and would not be without it and knew that it was very popular with a number of members of his own company. A conversation held subsequently with various members of the organization revealed the fact that St. Jacobs Oil had been performing most invaluable service for them in the way of curing them of rheumatism. Nearly every artist in the troupe used it and was enthusiastic in its praise and the writer was really forced to the conclusion that Tony Pastor was certainly in luck in having so valuable an article known and employed by his inimitably good company of performers for it enabled every one to be always in his place, thus insuring comfort to the manager and genuine satisfaction to the public. Tony Pastor would certainly be in trouble without St. Jacobs Oil. At least other managers whose artists have been temporarily unsupplied have noticed the difference between St. Jacobs Oil in stock and St. Jacobs Oil out of stock—among the members of their companies.—N. Y. Clipper.

A Democratic Board of Control.

Washington, April 21.—The democratic congressional committee have appointed a board of control, consisting of Representatives Flower of New York, Rosecrans of California, Cobb of Indiana and Randall of Pennsylvania, Senators Davis of West Virginia and Gorman of Maryland, and J. B. McLean of Ohio, C. C. Baldwin of New York and J. P. Stockton of New Jersey. Several new members were added to the general committee, and a sub-committee appointed on finance.

Given Up by Doctors.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured and with nothing but Hop Bitters and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die."

"Well-a-day! That's remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."—Salem Post.

INDEPENDENCE VS. THE MACHINE.

It is a cardinal principle with THE OREGONIAN to commend independence in political action. On instinct and principle it opposes professional managers and management. It likes not bosses nor their works. It sympathizes therefore with all efforts made by citizens, either in their individual capacity or in combination, to make trouble for "the machine." Yet it knows, of course, that men must act in or through their party. Nothing can be accomplished by isolated or desultory effort. The citizen who detaches himself wholly from party association and attempts to play only an individual and unconnected part loses his effort and makes no impression on the current of affairs. Government, under a free system, can be carried on only through party. Every citizen must prefer on the whole the ascendency of one party or another. Political independence therefore does not mean entire independence of political association. It does not oppose government through party, for that would be quixotic. It protests chiefly against the methods and arts and purposes of a class who make such management a study or trade, for their own interest, gain and advancement. Party can exist only by voluntary association, but the tyranny of "the machine" often strains this allegiance to the utmost. Both parties in Oregon have felt this severely for ten years past. There has been constant protest by members of both. To speak plainly, the republican party has for years been largely under the domination of a Mitchell ring, and the democratic party as largely under the domination of a Grover ring. A multitude of the adherents of either party have been dissatisfied with the means employed by the professional managers, and with the results that have come out of them. In primaries and conventions there ought to be some chance for choice and deliberation. In legislatures freedom of action ought not be forestalled by the organization and discipline of a body of men pledged to a programme laid down by professional politicians who consider only their own selfish objects, and who use offices, public employments and public funds to sustain themselves and control party action. When conventions are held the delegate who is not "in the ring," or who has views not in accord with its purposes, seldom has a chance to make himself heard or felt. The programme has been "set up," and his counsel goes for naught. The convention is not a deliberative body; it has been "fixed" for special purposes, and those delegates who are not in accord with such purposes are mere supernumeraries, and might as well have remained at home. In the legislature it is much the same. The two parties in our state have for many years been about equally subject to this tyranny. Both have been ridden by bosses, and both have an independent element which has given the bosses infinite trouble. This year there has been as much "machine work" as heretofore, but it has been met and foiled in nearly all the counties to a greater extent than usual. In the legislature there promises to be more independence and less subservience to bosses than is commonly witnessed. THE OREGONIAN distinctly commends the action of both parties in so far as that action has given a check to the professional managers, and only regrets that the check has not been more complete. But on the whole, when it is remembered with how high a hand things have been carried heretofore, it must be admitted that the people have in the main done well. The expectations of "the profession" are not by any means at so high a pitch now as on many former occasions.

CHINESE COMMERCE.

The Nation (New York) discussing the president's veto of the Chinese immigration bill, remarks that "no part of the president's argument is more weighty than that in which he points out the enormous folly of which the Pacific slope will be guilty if it quarrels with China or alienates the Chinese. The opening of the east to western trade is the greatest feat in the more recent commercial history. There is a fair prospect that within a very few years the traffic both of Europe and America with Asia will reach dimensions as yet undreamed of, and China, owing to its natural resources and the character of its population, is likely to be the best market in Asia, and, what is perhaps of greater consequence, the Chinese are likely to do the largest part of the business of exchange [illegible] west."

The Sacramento Record-Union answers this by justly saying that "it is either ignorant or malevolent. In the first place, continues that journal, there is really no foundation whatever for the assertion that any considerable increase of our trade with China is probable. In the next place, according to the economic doctrines which the Nation itself believes and teaches, no such great increase of trade can possibly occur while the American tariff is what it is. In the third place, even supposing that the alleged increase of trade was as certain as it is uncertain, it would not compensate in any way for the supplanting of American citizens by Chinese in all the mechanical, agricultural, mining and other occupations which the latter are capable of filling. It is surprising to find so intelligent a journal as the Nation falling into the vulgar error that trade advantages are the only ends to be sought, and that if they are secured it matters not at what sacrifices. The simple fact is, however, that our esteemed contemporary has a most superficial grasp of the whole subject, and that therefore its reasoning is weak and its conclusions ridiculous. We who have experienced it know that the evils of Chinese immigration enormously overbalance any conceivable advantages to be gained from the extension of intercourse with that country. We also know, what eastern journals cannot understand, that the commercial question is entirely separate from the immigration question, and that we may suspend immigration without touching the Chinese trade at all. But if it were necessary to surrender the last remnant of it we say the sacrifice would be light in consideration of the benefits to be gained by putting a stop to this barbarous invasion.

MacLean, who shot at Queen Victoria, rejoices in the possession of that British institution, a family solicitor, which gives him an advantage over Guiteau, and the family solicitor aforesaid has already come to the front with certificates of insanity from eminent specialists. Happily the degree of moral responsibility is not such a burning question here as in the case of Guiteau. With him it is a question of life or death; with MacLean it is a question only between confinement in prison and confinement in a lunatic asylum, for, under any circumstances, it is not at all likely that the old penalty for treason would be put in force against him and that he would be hanged, drawn and quartered. It will be quite sufficient if he be placed in permanent seclusion.

How long a man's constitution will withstand the trying duties of office-holding is shown in the case of a Mississippi postmaster, who has held on during fifty-one years. We know an Oregon postal official who, we are confident, will beat that record if the government will give him a show. He is already on the "home stretch," and fresh as ever.

Gov. Hoyt of Wyoming, where women have the right to vote, says none of them want office. He has "never heard of a woman who desired active public life." This will strike most people as an additional argument for woman suffrage.

The bill to make the Yaquina bay a port of entry has passed both houses of Congress. We shall now have the means of getting an authentic statement of the amount of its trade.

SCIENCE FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

"Let me make the soup of a nation and I care not who makes its laws." These, or words to such effect, were uttered by a wise philosopher. He was a man who could see why a Roman emperor should call the senate together to discuss the best way of boiling a turbot. As we must live by eating we should know what to eat and how to cook it. We have excellent beef—our bunch grass country beats the world for it—but we seldom know how to buy the best, how to cook it, and above all how to carve it. In eastern cities cooking clubs are now furnishing the desired information and training. Portland may have one—we don't know everything that is or is not in Portland; but if there is no cooking club here, one ought to be organized at once. When the practical part of this branch of science is considered our young ladies will easily see the reason why. In the eastern states there is a lady of Boston culture, Miss Parloa by name, author of many cookbooks of supreme literary value, who goes from city to city and possibly even to strange cities, lecturing on beef and the other solid things of this light and vain world. The last account we had of her she was lecturing in New York. Perhaps the lecture itself, of which we find an account in the local journal of that town may not be considered so important in itself as the fact brought out by the reporter, that the fashionable and thoughtful young ladies of the land are really attending lectures on cooking. The signs of the times are indeed hopeful. Men marry once or twice in life—possibly three or four times if very unfortunate,—but they must dine every day. The Chinese restriction bill and the building of a navy are incidents of national life, but a beefsteak is an every day matter and therefore worthy of more profound consideration. Important facts of a sociological and economic character can be based on apparently insignificant data. Let us illustrate. Miss Parloa lectured in the demonstration hall of the college of pharmacy in New York. Her text was a slaughtered ox and her assistant demonstrator a butcher, neither big nor burly, but with a white apron on. The audience is what pleases us. Report states that before the table on the long benches where studious druggists are wont to sit, sat about one hundred ladies. They were accompanied by just four gentlemen. The ladies wore sealskin and other cloaks and carried note books and pencils in their hands. Some of them had little pictures of an ox which they compared with the old original on the table. "Sealskin and other cloaks" indicate that these young ladies were of a class who mean to follow cooking as a profession, and therefore the preparation is naturally to be thorough. The report says:

> Miss Parloa began to talk, and the pencils flew over the little note books. "This is fat," remarked the lecturess, patting a certain portion of the ox that was of a creamy color, with streaks of dark red running through. The ladies wrote "fat" and the butcher nodded approvingly. "This is suet," continued the speaker, taking up a piece of a still whiter substance and crumbling it in her hand, "and it is almost a sure sign of good beef when suet crumbles nicely." One hundred little notes went into one hundred little books and one hundred family butchers will be made miserable this morning by the application of the suet test to their beef.

This is utility. This is practical education, and it ought to be introduced into every town and city. Any country is safe when its girls in sealskin cloaks can go into a market and tell good beef by its suet. Referring again to the lecture we find this:

> "The trouble with New Yorkers is," said Miss Parloa, "they all want the best cuts."
> "Why, so they do," whispered several of the pupils, looking at each other with an air of surprise. The butcher nodded and grinned. He was at home once more.
> "No matter how poor the buyers are they want the very best. That is why beef is generally so dear."
> "How very clever!" said one of the ladies in the fourth row, and there was a general applauding hum.
> "Now," continued the preceptress, "most people consider the tenderloin as the choicest portion of a beef; certainly they pay the most for it. As a matter of fact it is anything but the best part; it isn't even a good part. It has no flavor and very little nutrition. Am I not right?" to the butcher.
> "I wouldn't eat it, ma'am," he replied, with an air of disgust, and the audience laughed.
> "No doctor who cared to give his patients nourishment would order the tenderloin. If he only wanted to fill them up he might order it, but not otherwise."
> "What is the best part of the beef please?" said a trembling voice.
> "The toughest portions are the best," replied the speaker, smilingly, but with emphasis.

Here is a revelation of highest value. Epicures doubtless would rather be "filled up" with tender beef than nourished by tough steaks; but this is a working world, and what it wants is muscle. We are living wrong because we have no philosophy. But now the age of tough beef and muscle dawns upon us. Thus far we have had an effeminate rich aristocracy—effeminate because it lives on porter house steaks. The only way to settle nihilism, socialism, and the labor question is for capitalists to eat tough beef and let workingmen fill up with tenderloin. This will regulate things. We have long been under the impression that the world is governed on erroneous principles. Miss Parloa's lecture confirms our suspicions. We must consent to be ruled by natural laws. The labors of the cooking club, performed by young ladies in sealskin sacques, have a scientific bearing that is really amazing in extent and proportions.

Though it was a matter of no particular moment in itself whether the chairman of the republican central committee was designated by the convention or elected by the committee itself, yet the protest against the appointment by the convention served as a check to a proceeding that bore the appearance of a pre-arrangement, and it was therefore approved by the convention. Subsequently the committee, upon motion of Mr. Eastham, who had raised the objection to the appointment by the convention, unanimously elected Mr. Hirsch of Multnomah as its chairman. It was not, therefore, a protest against Mr. Hirsch for chairman, but against the method of appointment. It should be said, however, that hitherto for many years the chairman has been designated by the convention. Yet we think the principle of allowing the committee to select its own officers the better one. The national republican committee always does so.

By the appointment of R. G. Worthington to the collectorship of customs at Boston, the president has widened the breach between the stalwart and Garfield factions in Massachusetts. Beard, who gives place to Worthington, was appointed by Hayes. He is an old merchant and a good collector. His reappointment was urged by the Boston merchants, by both the United States senators, Hoar and Dawes, and by all the members of the Massachusetts delegation in the house, with two exceptions. Beard represented the anti-Grant party, which is the republican party of Massachusetts; Worthington the most radical of stalwarts, that being his sole recommendation to office. He has always been loyal to Grant. He has never had business experience, and there certainly was no public clamor for his appointment. Gov. Boutwell was his active friend. The appointment can only be considered as a political one.

It would be interesting to learn what reason the acting president had for superseding Capt. J. T. Brown of the land office at Olympia. Capt. Brown is in every respect a capable and worthy official, and his administration of the office has given entire satisfaction. Moreover, he is one of those who have a just claim on positions at the disposal of the government. He was a captain in the 10th Illinois infantry, entered the service at the beginning of the war, did his whole duty manfully for three years and only left the service after losing a leg at the battle of Resaca. The man named as his successor is not known on this coast, but probably is some professional office-seeker whom a senator or other spoils-distributing boss had on his hands.

Longfellow's last poem will appear in the May Atlantic. The "Jovis" was received from him only a few days before his death, and will be cherished as one of the choicest of the many literary treasures belonging to the magazine.

Gen. Don Carlos Buell, whose death is announced, had higher military merit than critics have usually awarded him. The impatience of the people at the beginning of the war for decisive victories gave him insufficient opportunity to distinguish himself. The country reaped no advantage through his supersedure of Gen. Rosecrans. Gen. Buell was a native of Ohio, graduated at West Point in 1841, and served with distinguished gallantry in Mexico. At the outbreak of the rebellion he was assigned an important command in the west, and saved the army of Gen. Grant at the battle of Shiloh. He was born in the year 1818.

The death of Darwin, the great naturalist, is an event that will arrest attention. Eminent for scientific attainments, his name will always be inseparably connected with some of the most interesting theories and results of biological investigation. He lived above seventy years.

SATURDAY MORNING · APRIL 22, 1882

For Hotel Arrivals see fourth page.

DEATH FROM HEART DISEASE.—Yesterday afternoon about half-past 5 o'clock John Wilson, a moulder employed in Smith Bros. & Watson's iron works, dropped dead in the packing room. During the entire day he complained of a pain in his left side, and of feeling sick. At the hour mentioned he walked into the packing room, where he sat down upon a pair of scales and expired. Coroner Garnold was immediately notified and the body taken to the morgue, where a jury was summoned and an inquest held. Several employees of the foundry were called as witnesses, whose testimony confirmed the above account of his death. He was about 40 years old, and has been in the city but about a month. He leaves a daughter, who is now at Port Townsend. His wife and an older daughter died some time since. Coroner Garnold telegraphed the fact of his death to his daughter, and will await a reply before burying the remains.

"MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING."—The combined music of forty police whistles, more or less, last night about 10 o'clock, brought Policeman Watson and a reporter to the corner of Second and Washington streets, from which the racket had seemed to have proceeded. All that could be seen, however, were two Chinamen, yelling at the top of their voices and holding each other. Each wanted the other arrested, but could not give any reason for it. A reporter, standing near, pointed out a large sheath knife lying in the gutter near the heathens. Neither Chinaman would own the ugly weapon, and the reporter, with his usual outlook for No. 1, then claimed the weapon on grounds of having found it. A charge of disorderly conduct was lodged against the Chinamen, who furnished bonds for their appearance and were released. The knife is still at police headquarters.

FRONTIER FREAKS.—One of Portland's boys, just down from the Bend d'Oreille country, tells of a little amusement he was favored with at Sand point. While standing in front of a saloon, two drunken Indians rode up and, walking inside, demanded some whisky. It was refused them, when they both drew weapons, but had them taken away by the two proprietors and themselves thrown outside. The Indians then threw some stones through the window, and attempted to break in the door, when one of the men inside fired a shot through the door, which plowed its way through both legs of one of the Indians. He says that it is no uncommon sight to see drunken Indians, and that but little care is taken by the authorities to prevent the sale of whisky to them.

PAINFUL FALL.—About 6 o'clock yesterday evening a seven year old daughter of Prof. R. C. White was seriously injured by falling through a scuttle-hole on Stark street between Front and First. It was left open through carelessness, and as the child was returning from school, with some playmates, she walked into the cellar, striking the bottom with her head. She was immediately afterward picked up and carried home, where Dr. Saylor was called to dress the wounds. He found the left side of the forehead gashed and bruised, necessitating several stitches. Her left leg is also painfully bruised, but no bones are broken. The wounds are not at all dangerous, but very severe and cause the child much suffering.

COLUMBIA FOOTBALL CLUB.—A meeting was held at room 47 in Union Block Thursday evening for the purpose of organizing a football club. Following are the charter members enrolled: Messrs. Wm. M. Molson, C. W. Whitney, O. F. Griffin, jr., G. T. Willett, J. Alexander, J. O. Todd, W. Dunholm, L. Sawyer, Edgar E. Coursen, A. J. Coffee, E. W. Bingling, John C. Lucas and C. M. Hale. After organizing the company was called the Columbia Football Club. Wm. M. Molson was elected president; W. C. Whitney, vice president, and O. F. Griffin, secretary. The first move of the company will be either to buy or rent suitable grounds upon which to practice. Many new members will be admitted at their next regular meeting.

APPRENTICES KIDNAPPED.—The captain of the British ship Duke of Abercorn has reported to the authorities that four of his apprentices had been induced to leave the vessel by some boarding house runner. All of these apprentices were quite young and very respectably connected in England. The father of one of them is a wealthy brewer of London. The boys have probably been decoyed into some retired place where they will be kept secreted until the vessel goes to sea. The Duke of Abercorn will leave for Astoria this morning. The master regrets to lose the boys, as they were entrusted to him by their parents in the old country. One of them had sailed with him for four years.

THROUGH TICKETS.—Readers of THE OREGONIAN in the interior, who contemplate making eastern trips this spring should remember that through tickets to all points, including way stations, in the east, west and south, may be bought at the O. R. & N. Co's ticket office. Recently agencies for several trans-Atlantic steamship lines were placed with Mr. A. L. Maxwell, ticket agent, and yesterday he sold five tickets through to Liverpool. In addition to the benefit of low through rates, and security against possible loss of funds en route, purchasers of through tickets are entitled to transfers of persons and baggage at all connecting points, including San Francisco.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST VIOLENCE.—Constable Grant left on the Astoria boat yesterday morning with a number of sailors, whom he is taking to the British vessel San Stephano, now lying in the harbor at Astoria. The captain of the vessel requested the constable to escort the men down, as he was afraid to send them by a sailor boarding house master or runner, as he thought the temper of the mob at Astoria was not to be trifled with.

SATISFACTORILY ADJUSTED.—The striking longshoremen employed by the O. R. & N. Co., resumed work again yesterday afternoon. In the morning the matter being brought to the attention of Mr. Prescott, manager of the company, it is understood he considered the demand of the strikers not unreasonable, in view of the scarcity of that class of labor, and cheerfully acceded to their proposition.

ASSIGNMENT.—The drug firm of Henry H. Klingel yesterday made an assignment of their entire stock and outstanding accounts to G. G. Gammon. The assets of the firm are about $10,000, while its liabilities are about $20,000. The firm had been doing business but a short time, and opened their store at 87 First street. The bulk of the creditors are San Francisco houses.

EXAMINATION POSTPONED.—Ah King and Sing Yet, the two Chinese pawnbrokers who were arrested and charged with robbing the residence of Mr. F. S. Akin, were arraigned for examination in the police court yesterday. Upon motion of their counsel the examination was postponed until to-day.

SATURDAY SERVICES.—The regular meeting of the Seventh Day Adventists will be held in Brady's Hall, East Portland. Sabbath school at 1 o'clock P. M., followed with preaching by Elder A. Snashall. Preaching on Sunday evening at 7:30; subject, "The Two Horned Beasts and the Sunday Law."

OPEN TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.—The regular meeting will be held at the new hall on Morrison street, between Third and Fourth. There will be short addresses by Judge Caples and Judge Adams, a solo by Mrs. Snider, of Seattle, and a recitation by Capt. James Bronson.

NEARLY ALL MAIL BY STEAMER.—Since the arrangement of running steamers every four days, all mails from California (except northern counties) and from the east destined for Portland the Willamette valley, Eastern Oregon and Washington, are sent by steamer.

TO HOLD COURT.—Hon. Lorenzo Sawyer, U. S. circuit judge for California, Oregon and Nevada, will leave San Francisco by the Columbia Monday to hold circuit court here next week.

THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN.—To-morrow's issue will be an unusually interesting number. Leave your address at the business office during the day. Advertisements received up to 10 P. M.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—Capt. Horace Daniels, of the steamer Vancouver, is again seriously ill at his home in Vancouver, and it is not expected that he can recover.

PATENTS.—Patents have recently been granted to H. C. Clement of Albany, Or., for a curtain bracket; and J. M. Trackwell of Skookum Chuck, W. T., for a shackle.

NEW MARKET THEATER.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather (and it was about as stormy a night as was ever seen in Portland at this season), and the great mass meeting in another part of the city, a good house greeted the uprising of the curtain on "Senator Silverbags" last night. The piece went along with comparative smoothness and the salient points of the play were well made. Kennedy was the central figure of the amusing comedy and kept the house in a continuous roar of laughter. No eccentric comedian who has visited here, so far, has equaled him in insight [illegible] of expression or in giving the prominent situations of the piece an amusing rendition. The other members of the company were capitally up in their respective parts and gave great zest to the piece.

It will be repeated to-day at the matinee and given this evening for the last time. Seldom has a local comedy been written with a more sparkling dialogue or more amusing situations, and we predict for it a great run on the eastern boards, whither Mr. Kendall will shortly transplant it with a strong company.

In C. C. Morse's art window, on exhibition, is another large painting by J. E. Stuart, and is a companion piece to the Mt. Hood picture that was exhibited a few weeks ago. The subject is Mt. Adams, from Hunter's point. The foreground is about 600 feet above Hood river valley, and gives a bird's-eye view of the Cascade mountains. To the right of the foreground is a deep, blue canyon, where Bascom's lake pours its crystal waters over the immense bluff with two grand leaps to the depths below. This is the grandest view in Oregon and must be seen to be appreciated.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

As there is much public curiosity to get at the bedrock of the supposed Coffin title, allow me to state a point not met by "S. D." in his remarks the other day.

In the Ford case, decided by Judge Williams, the grant was held inoperative because neither the husband nor wife were in esse (living) or existence on Sept. 27, 1850, the date of the grant. They had been holding a claim under the provisional government, but went to California in 1849, and were drowned off the mouth of the Columbia river on their way home in 1849, so that neither of them were residing on the claim at the passage of the act, nor did either of them die on the claim.

In the Coffin case, the husband and wife were residing on the claim in 1849 and filing it under the provisional government. The wife (the mother of these heirs) died on the claim in 1849, and the husband kept on his residence and perfected his donation, using the time they were on the claim, prior to the act, as part of his residence, on proving up.

Now the act adopted residence and cultivation made prior to its passage. Query, did it adopt anything else? Did it adopt also the condition that any person dying on the claim prior to the act should have title? This point has never been passed on, and is the basis of the Coffin title, I believe. It has been settled that the wife took no land unless the husband went on and completed the conditions of the grant. In this case the surveyor general held that the wife, not being in esse, could not receive a grant, and so gave it all to Stephen Coffin as an unmarried man at the date of the act.

W. SCHEFFLER'S PURE WINES AND BRANDY.

It is universally conceded that Wm. Scheffler's St. Helena (Cal.) Sherry, Port, Amber, Riesling and Claret wines, as also his vacuum distilled pure Grape Brandy are really superior to other manufactures, not excepting that imported, the adulterations and impurities of which is now generally understood. Mr. Scheffler's goods are popularly known all over the Pacific coast. Eight-tenths of all the druggists in California, Oregon and Washington territory have adopted his goods, discarding the imported. Ask your druggist here in Portland, East Portland, or in any town in this northwest and you will be quite sure to obtain it, as you will at most of the first-class hotels and bars. Mr. Scheffler's Wines and Sanitary Brandy have been steadily growing into favor until they are known well in almost every household as a medicine, if not otherwise. Mr. Scheffler's process of distilling in a vacuum is his own patent process, which relieves his brandy of the fusil oil, making it really pure, sanitary and healthful.

SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 22, 1882.

REPUBLICAN RATIFICATION.

(Concluded from First Page.)

upon the veto, and yet each speaker knew that the question was not a party question.

Time will not permit me, on this occasion, to discuss the Chinese question, and yet there are some things in connection with it which ought not, at the present juncture, to be forgotten.

Among these things is the fact that the democratic party is largely responsible for the presence of the Chinese upon this coast and for the original Chinese treaty. As early as the year 1853 a democratic senate of the state of California, presided over by a democratic lieutenant governor (Purdy), passed resolutions reciting the fact that Chinese were already residents in California in considerable numbers; that the Chinese trade would be valuable, and especially so to the state of California, which was situated nearest to the empire of China, and asking the appointment of a commissioner from the United States to reside in China. The original Chinese treaty of 1858 was negotiated by the administration of James Buchanan. It substantially provided that citizens of the United States should be permitted to travel and reside in China for the purpose of commerce, trade, etc., and that if subsequently the empire of China should give to any nation greater privileges than granted to the United States by the treaty, the same should inure at once to the United States so that the United States should enjoy commercial advantages with China equal to the most favored nation, and in return China was to have the good offices of the United States in any controversy with other foreign powers. This treaty having been made by a democratic administration was considered as and claimed to be by the democratic party one of the important events of the administration. Now prior to this treaty, Chinese in considerable numbers already resided upon the Pacific coast. They resided in Oregon.

The constitution of Oregon provides as follows: Sec. 8, article 15 "No Chinaman not a resident of the state at the adoption of this constitution shall ever hold any real estate or mining claim or work any mining claim therein." This constitution was adopted by the convention the 8th day of September, 1857. Now notwithstanding that there were at the date of the Buchanan treaty a considerable Chinese population in both California and Oregon, no restrictions upon Chinese immigration was provided in that treaty. The United States were securing something by the treaty which was contrary to the policy and traditions of the Chinese government, the right of foreigners to enter, travel, trade and reside in the hitherto exclusive Chinese empire. But Chinese immigration continued to increase. The building of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads furnished employment for considerable numbers, and no doubt induced immigration.

About the year 1868 the Chinese government adopted a new policy toward the outside world. It sent an embassy to the United States, at the head of which was Hon. Anson Burlingame, an American citizen, to negotiate a supplemental treaty. This resulted in the "Burlingame Treaty," as it is called, signed on the part of the United States in July, 1868. By that treaty the privileges theretofore extended to the Chinese by national courtesy to travel and reside in the United States was secured to China by treaty obligations, and thus the same rights guaranteed by the treaty of 1858 to American citizens in China were secured to Chinese citizens in the United States. Under this treaty our citizens resided in China and claimed and received the protection of the Chinese government and our merchants had large investments in China and the United States carried on a large and profitable commerce with China.

If the policy of permitting the Chinese to travel and reside in the United States was a mistake, and the evils which grew out of it were not compensated for by the commercial advantages secured on the part of the United States, I submit that the mistake was not alone a mistake of the republican party. The fault lies largely at the door of the Buchanan administration.

Another fact worthy to be remembered in this connection is that when the embassy headed by Mr. Burlingame reached San Francisco in 1868 a grand banquet was tendered to them in San Francisco, over which the then democratic governor of the state of California, H. H. Haight, presided and at which many of the leading democrats of the state sat at the table with the leading Chinese merchants of the city. As time passed on it became apparent to thinking men that a large influx of Chinese was undesirable, they could not become citizens; they took no interest in our institutions. They did not assimilate with our population. They supplanted by cheap labor the more desirable laboring men, who are capable of becoming citizens, who contribute to the wealth of the country by their labor and by building up reciprocal industries and interests by consuming the products of our own soil and manufactories. The people of both parties on the Pacific coast became satisfied that Chinese immigration should be restricted. Without entering in detail upon the attempts to restrict the Chinese immigration, it is sufficient to say that it was found that our treaty stipulations with China must be first modified. Through a republican administration a modified treaty was negotiated and secured, by which the United States were authorized to restrict Chinese immigration for a reasonable time.

The congress of the United States, through the earnest and untiring efforts of the republican senators and representatives from the Pacific coast, passed an act among other things restricting Chinese immigration for twenty years. This, in the judgment of the president of the United States, and his legal advisers, was feared to be a restriction for a longer time than would be considered as reasonable. The result was as the president had no power to amend and could do nothing but veto the act, he returned it to the congress of the United States with his veto pointing out his objection to the same. Our representatives in congress and the republican party on this coast feel much chagrined that the president did not feel at liberty to approve the bill, but I submit to you and to all candid and fair minded persons, if that is any reason why the republican representatives in congress, who so earnestly labored for the bill and the republican party upon this coast which has never faltered in its devotion to the interests of the workingman should be punished. I have heard the president denounced for vetoing the bill, even if he believed twenty years was an unwarranted restriction, because it was said congress could have repealed the law, but it is not the duty of the executive to approve a bill because congress may obviate the objections to it by a repeal. It is understood the president has announced his willingness to sign a bill which restricts immigration to ten years, which he considers a reasonable restriction, and it will then be competent for congress, if the interests of the country appear to demand it, to continue restriction.

The dispatches inform us that the republican caucus has determined to pass in every possible manner the passage of an act to conform to the president's views in this respect, and that the act has already passed the house, and if the democratic party is sincere in its professions for the restriction of Chinese immigration and is not working alone for political capital, before congress adjourns, and possibly before the day of election in this state, the law will have been passed and the Chinese question will have become one of the dead issues; but if the democracy, for the purpose of keeping the issue alive, shall decline to cooperate with the members from the Pacific coast and the republicans in congress, the responsibility will rest upon them.

I have not time on this occasion, nor would it be appropriate to enter upon an extended discussion of the political issues of to-day. In conclusion, however, let me say that undoubtedly some are disappointed in the action of the convention. The success of one is necessarily the failure of others where many strive for the same end. Such disappointments are unavoidable. Defects exist in the present system of nomination and yet no better plan has been suggested. With us principles are above men. As a party we believe that the will of the majority should govern. If principles are not above men, if the only thing in controversy between the parties is possession of the offices, we can afford to brood over disappointment and cherish animosities. The results of this election will reach further than our own state and local offices. It will affect both branches of the national congress. It is of but little importance who shall represent the state in the house of representatives or in the United States senate, compared with the question as to whether such representatives shall be the representatives of republican principles. I for one am not willing yet to leave the government of this nation turned over to the control of those who lately sought to destroy it, to devolve the duty of paying the debt, maintaining the public credit and care for the maimed soldiers, and widows and orphans of the war upon the democratic party; nor shall I be until I have better evidence than I have yet had that the democratic party in the south fully accepts the results of the war.

We are indebted for the present prosperous condition of the country to the financial policy of a republican administration and the firm adherence of the republican party to the doctrine that the national debt must be honestly paid. The credit of the nation is higher than ever before in its history. Our national currency is no longer fluctuating in value, but is at par with gold. The nation has entered upon an unparalleled career of prosperity. Great railroad and other enterprises have started into new life. Enterprises for the development of our commerce and internal transportation long hoped for suddenly appear near realization.

Who would now like to see distrust thrown upon our national credit, the tide of our prosperity checked, capital seeking retirement for safety, our great enterprises stopped, thousands of men now employed and earning support for their families, thrown out of employment, and labor arrayed against capital?

If we are sincere when we claim for the republican party the credit of our prosperity, we shall forget all jealousies and disappointments and rally again around the standard of the party, and as in past conflicts, march shoulder to shoulder to a glorious victory. [Loud applause.]

HON. RUFUS MALLORY

Was next presented to the audience. He said:

Fellow Citizens: The fundamental law of the state in which we live, the constitution has made it necessary for you to choose from among you certain distinguished persons for the purpose of administering the affairs of government. In that constitution you are required to choose the men who will so act for you every two years. It is not now quite two years since last we met at the polls and cast our votes for a ruler, not of our state, but of our nation. On that occasion you were called upon to discuss and consider matters of national importance. You are now looking more directly to the interest of the state, and its local affairs. The convention which has just adjourned, composed of representatives of the people, chosen at their primary elections in the different counties, have put in nomination a ticket, putting upon it the names that were thought most competent to fill the various offices. It will not be necessary for me to here say more than has been said by the able gentleman who has just preceded me, of the merits and qualifications of these gentlemen who have been chosen by the convention to be rulers of the state of Oregon for the next four years.

This convention in its wisdom has unanimously nominated the Hon. M. C. George for congress. It is due to him to say that he has been more fortunate than any other representative the state of Oregon ever had in securing an important position on an important and prominent committee in the house of representatives. Mr. George has had the good fortune to be placed upon the committee on commerce, an important matter for the people of Oregon; and is in a condition now where he can render substantial benefit to our state. It is material service we need. It is not necessary to have men in congress for mere show, we want men who can do something. And Mr. George can do much for us. He was carried to victory two years ago by a large majority of the state, and he will be carried by a larger majority at the election next June. [Cheers.]

The candidate for governor is a stranger in politics. He was chosen by a democratic county two years ago and sent to the state capital. And the first time he took his seat in that house he was elected speaker. [Cheers.] His ability it is not necessary to discuss. He will prove that when the time comes. I was impressed not a little by the gloom which surrounded the democratic party at the time it assembled and more especially just before it assembled. There probably has been no time in the history of the democratic party of the state of Oregon, when the chances of the party were worse than they are in 1882. You will remember that the election for president in 1876 turned upon a single vote, and you will remember the situation of the democratic party here in Oregon, and what disgraceful efforts they made to secure the vote of the state of Oregon at that time. In 1880 they were determined to secure the vote of this state and put forth all their efforts. But we carried the state by six or seven hundred majority. [Cheers.] This left the democratic party without a hope, their ranks had been broken and destroyed. [Cheers.] This was the condition that party was left in up to a short time before it assembled here a few days ago. But there came a telegram that informed them that the president had vetoed the Chinese immigration bill. They mistook it for a sign of victory and it brought out candidates by the score.

Mr. Mallory then went on to say, that the democratic party had [illegible] and [illegible] a governor just at the verge of the grave. He then proceeded to discuss the Chinese bill, laying special stress on the fact that the committee stood six republicans to four democrats in favor of rushing the bill through under the previous question rule. He had no [illegible] that the senate would soon follow the example of the house of representatives in passing the bill. He then proceeded to show how the democratic party had abandoned its principles in its platform for the purpose of making capital out of the Chinese veto. The party that would thus change from one thing to another was not the party to be trusted with the affairs of the state. He closed with the following remarks:

"The question is whether you desire to relegate the affairs of this state into such hands, or whether you will leave it to the care of that party that has never attempted to destroy its institutions, but always to build them up. I have no doubt but that you will do the latter. It is not necessary that I should consume your time in discussing this question further. Thanking you for your kind attention I will now close."

Hon. W. Lair Hill, of Wasco county; Prof. L. J. Powell, of Linn; Binger Herman, of Douglas; Capt. N. H. Humphreys, of Linn; Geo. W. McBride, of Columbia; E. L. Eastham, of Clackamas; C. W. Fulton, of Clatsop, and O. T. Porter, of Linn, followed. The meeting did not break up till 11 o'clock.
